This course allows students to explore fashion brand story-telling under the lens of cultural, creative, and social and business contexts, as well as the effective management of communication strategies within a fashion organisation.

Students will be looking at historical and traditional examples in dress, style, and photography, moving quickly onto captivating the magic of fashion and luxury in videos, websites and through social networks. They understand the philosophy, growth and importance of social media in business, and learn how platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest, Tik Tok and WeChat are used by communication experts to represent an organisation, promote a product or brand, and connect consumers by creating a loyal following.

The sound knowledge of traditional and digital marketing will enable them to convey emotions through the use of images.

The students' educational path will bring them to learn how to analyse, develop and filter ideas using creative research techniques, social observation and semiotics. Their narrative is part of an extensive analysis of style, placing fashion in connection with art, cinema, music, design, marketing and society.

Students are exposed to investigate ways to create the 'buzz' necessary to increase engagement, while always respecting brand image and any constraints of an assigned brief, or budget. The course focuses on editorial skills, PR and press activity, fashion writing and copyediting, media planning, creative direction and fashion shooting - perfectly balancing traditional and media communication activity.

Course Specific Assessment Criteria:

The methods of assessment used give breadth and depth, which allow for both the formative and summative assessment of every student at each stage of the programme.

Assessment methods to support learning:

The programme uses a balanced assessment system, both summative and formative as an integral part of gathering information on student learning. Different forms of assessment can, and where appropriate should, be used to test different types of skills and learning.

Formative Assessment:

Formative assessment informs both teachers and students about student understanding at a point when timely adjustments can be made. In formative assessment students could be involved in the assessment process. These formative assessment situations will also give students an opportunity to learn to critique the work of others. Some of the instructional strategies that will be used formatively include the following:

- criteria and goal setting: asking students to participate in establishing what should be included in criteria for success;

- self and peer assessment: With peer evaluation, students see each other as resources for understanding and checking for quality work against previously established criteria;
- student record keeping: helps students better understand their own learning as evidenced by their classroom work. This process of students keeping ongoing records of their work not only engages students, it also helps them, beyond a “grade,” to see where they started and the progress they are making toward the learning goal.

Summative Assessments:

These assessments are a means of gauging student learning, at a particular point in time, relative to established marking criteria. Summative assessments > can occur during as well as at the end of each unit and concentrate on specific evidence of student work, examples as follows:

Portfolio Assessment > is used to assess a variety of projects that have been developed throughout the unit.

Practical Coursework > allows the students to demonstrate their understanding and application of practical areas of study.

Written Reports > are required in some study areas, where a clear and structured brief is provided and the students are asked to submit work to be marked independently and anonymously by staff.

Formal Examinations > are required in some study areas.

Presentations > are used in some subjects to allow the student to develop their professional communication and presentation skills.

Student Projects > are used when the student is required to submit work to be marked independently and anonymously.

11. Student Evaluation

Student feedback is essential to the programme development and student comments are used to enhance both the successful management of the programme and the teaching/learning strategies.

Istituto Marangoni gathers student opinion in a variety of ways, which may include the following:

- Informal contact with Programme Leader and subject Tutor through appointments with academic staff;
- Issues will be taken to Programme Reflective Meetings and added to the Annual Academic Monitoring Report;
- Formal Student Representation;
- Semester/Term Questionnaire;
- Resources Questionnaire (at the end of each academic year);
- Final Questionnaire (at the end of a study cycle);
- NPS (Net Promoter Score) Questionnaire (at the end of each academic year).

It would be desirable that students provide details of their identity when giving constructive feedback on the course and teaching methods. There might be occasions when that is not appropriate and Istituto Marangoni recognises such exceptions. In these instances, the programme teams and central support services will ensure that anonymity and confidentiality are respected.

In order to 'close the feedback loop' and to communicate any improvements resulting from participants attendance, at least once in the academic year, programme teams relate back to participants the actions taken in response to their views.

Participants will be asked to answer to a series of questions, for example, if it was clear what they were meant to be learning, if the teaching had helped them learn effectively and if they have developed new skills or improved the existing ones.

The data will be analysed and the Programme Leader will be required to comment on:

- key strengths and issues arising from student performance;
- key strengths and issues arising from student feedback;
- actions and improvements for the next academic year.
